REPORT NO.

1. Chinese students recently returned from the United States are found to be well indoctrinated along pro-Communist lines. In China their pro-Communist and pro-Soviet ideas are a strong influence on otherwise neutral or even anti-Communist fellow workers in government, professions, business, and industry, who credit them with first hand knowledge of the relative position and strength of Communism in the United States.
2. These returned students say that no effort is made to indoctrinate them against Communism while they are living in the United States.*

* Washington Comment. This indicates a definite falling away of the activities of the Kuomintang in the United States toward the cultivation and control of students.

This document is hereby regraded to CONFIDENTIAL in accordance with the letter of 16 October 1978 from the Director of Central Intelligence to the Archivist of the United States.
